DID YOU KNOW?

Seldom seen, the seas around the Isle of Mull are rich in molluscs and crustaceans. These creatures are an important part of the marine food chain and provide pubs and restaurants with a wealth of tasty seafood for locals and visitors to enjoy. Scallops that are harvested in an ethically responsible manner are, perhaps, the meal to have to sample the taste of Mull.

Many of Mull's best restaurants, specialise in providing their customers with a wide selection of locally sourced sea food.
